

INTRODUCING THE AMICUS PROGRAM

New York University School of Law's Amicus Program for practicing attorneys offers a rigorous learning environment designed for busy legal professionals. Conscientious attorneys need to advance their skills and keep current with the latest developments in the law. And their demanding schedules limit their ability to attend traditional courses. The Amicus Program is designed to meet their educational and professional needs. We offer a range of focused programs including tax, bankruptcy, ethics, corporate governance, and labor law taught by members of our distinguished faculty as well as world-renowned legal experts.

AMICUS PROGRAM FOR 2005

New Advanced Professional Certificate in Taxation

Fall 2004—See the Web site for details.

The new Advanced Professional Certificate (APC) in Taxation program meets the specialized postgraduate educational needs of attorneys in corporate tax, estate planning and international tax. The 12-credit APC program consists of related advanced-level LL.M. in Taxation courses.

New Ethics Workshop with Professor Stephen Gillers

January 11, 2005

NYU School of Law's own Professor Stephen Gillers provides a three-hour session on legal ethics, with an emphasis on the New York Rules where pertinent. This workshop reflects on current issues in professional responsibility, featuring recent cases and case law.

Wallace-Lyon National Tax Workshop

February 24 - 26, 2005

This new annual event takes the Graduate Tax Program on the road to Orlando, Florida, and features distinguished faculty, as well as star alumni from academia, practice, government and the bench. Our two-and-a-half-day program addresses current developments in major areas of federal taxation through problem-method based analysis.

Graduate Tax Workshop 60th Anniversary Celebration

April 8-9, 2005

Current developments in major areas of tax practice, featuring distinguished full-time and adjunct faculty, as well as prominent alumni. Gala dinner planned to honor the anniversary.

Conference on Labor

May 19-20, 2005

Leading experts explore current developments in labor and employment law.

Summer Tax Program

May - June 2005

A range of intensive courses open to tax professionals on a non-credit basis, as well as students enrolled in NYU School of Law and other laws schools.
